FOREIGN IRON AND STEEL MAKERS.

The members of the Iron and Steel Institute of Great Britain, who, with other organizations from Germany and France, are to hold a meeting and make a tour of the country in October, are already beginning to arrive. In all there will be 500 or 600 in the party, and the assembly will constitute the most important of the kind ever held in the United States. Southwest Virginia will have them in her midst for several days and will have the opportunity to show both the richness of its mineral resources, and the enterprise and hospitality of its people.

The good that will result from the visit of the members of the institute, if they are favorably impressed, and they cannot be otherwise, will be incalculable. It will afford an opportunity for a world-wide advertisement among some of the ablest men in the iron and steel trade, and be the means of bringing millions of dollars for investment.

They ought to be well entertained, and it is quite safe to say that they will.

THE FARMERS SHOULD HELP.

The Southwest Virginia Enterprise, published at Wytheville, urges the farmers and others in the vicinity of the town to come forward and give support to the effort to develop the place by purchasing lots at the sale of the Development Company on the 30th of the month. It refers to what the farmers around Salem did for that town, and says that they not only helped to secure industries for the place but received in many cases from $2,000 to $3,000 for an investment of from $200 to $300. In addition it also alludes to the benefit received by the farmers by a consequent creation of a home market and an increased price for their products.

The statements of the enterprise are not disputable. There is no better way to enlist others with you in developments than by putting your own money in what you want them to put theirs. The great enterprises which have been started in the Valley and Southwest Virginia in the last few years, and are being carried to a successful completion, have almost all been perfected by the combination of home and outside capital working together. If Wytheville wants to grow and progress as it ought, its home people and farmers must aid largely in the development. The material benefits to be derived from an influx of immigration of the proper sort, and the erection of new factories is self evident.

No one dreamed ten years ago that Roanoke would become the city she is today.

With the manifestation of a proper spirit of enterprise, there is no reason why Wytheville should not have a bright future.

CHAUNCEY DEPEW ON RAILROADS.

No sooner is Chauncey Depew back from Europe than he is making speeches again. He has an equal facility in addressing every kind of assembly, and his speeches are always replete with practical thought. Last week he addressed the farmers at their State fair, held at Syracuse, N. Y. Among other things, he declared that there should be no prejudice against railroad men among farmers, and said that every mile of new railroad constructed brought 100,000 fresh acres of land into cultivation.

As far as is possible with human nature, prejudice should not exist against anything.

Railroads, like other things, should be judged by their actions, and not by forebodings. Conducted on a wise and liberal policy, endeavoring to build up its entire line, using every fair and legitimate means to develop its tributary country, no greater material benefit can accrue to any section than the construction throughout its territory of a line of railroad. It is only when a railroad abuses its great powers, and destroys one town or section at the expense of another by undue and unequal rates, that it deserves censure.

Taking Mr. Depew's figures as correct, and he ought to be good authority, the 195 miles of railroad being built by the Norfolk and Western railroad, from Elkhorn to Ironton, Ohio, will bring into use 19,500,000 acres of land; the extension from Bluefield to Norton 11,500,000, and from Pulaski to North Carolina 10,900,000, a total of 41,900,000 acres.

TO MAKE THE PLACE KNOWN.

"I wrote a friend of mine in Chicago the other day," said a bright and observing traveling man yesterday, "that he ought to come to Southwest Virginia. The progress and development here is simply marvellous, and yet Roanoke and its tributary country is just becoming known. I told my friend candidly that he could make more money here in two weeks than he could in Chicago in his line of business in a year."

It is to be the particular business of THE TIMES, among other things, to make this section better known in the large centres of population. There is already a very large amount of immigration to this section but it needs to be quadrupled, and will be as more people learn of its resources and advantages.

Several thousand copies of the first issue of THE TIMES were sent broadcast over the country and extra large additions will continue to follow from time to time.

WANTED—BETTER COOKING.

A writer in the Charlotte (N. C.) Chronicle makes a strong appeal for the dissemination of a better knowledge of the art of cooking.

"There is nothing in the world," says he, "that has such an appetizing aroma as fried ham and brown gravy and mush, and he loves them yet, but broiled meat is far more easily digested; but the practice of giving fried meat and white gravy, boiled cabbage, fried bread, weak coffee, and soda biscuits with the appearance of yellow jaundice, will sour the disposition and make the average man fly to peepsin, brandy, or even as mean a thing as corn whiskey for internal relief."

There is no question that bad cooking is one of the great causes of dyspepsia, and that a better knowledge of how to prepare food well would be of great service.

BEN BUTTERWORTH, the Cincinnati Quaker Congressman, has declined to stand for a renomination. His refusal to do so is a loss to Congress, and means the retirement to private life of one of the brightest and ablest members of the House of Representatives. His eloquence—and no one could be more eloquent at times—proceeded from great depth of earnestness. With ability he also combined good humor, and his friends are numerous on both sides of the National House.

THE TARIFF STILL UNSETTLED.

The Conferees Not Yet Agreed on the Sugar and Metal Amendments.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—[Special]—Although a meeting of the conference committee on the tariff bill had been called for this morning, when the hour of meeting arrived the Democratic members were notified that there would be no meeting. The reason for a postponement was a desire on the part of Republican conferees to consult further among themselves upon points remaining in dispute.

It is intimated that the metal schedule is the bone of contention. A report is current this morning that the iron and steel men are not satisfied with the concessions made by the Senate conferees and are demanding a restoration of rates fixed by the House. They are threatening, it is said, if their demands are not granted to defeat the bill.

Northwestern Senators interested in free binding twine, are using their influence with the conferees to prevent agreement to place a duty of a cent a pound on that article. Some of the interviews between conferees and these Senators has been quite animated.

It appears that no progress has been made since Saturday morning in the disposition of sugar and binders' twine, bonded period and metal amendments, but that these, the most important matters still open, are in such shape that if an agreement be reached on one it will probably result in an agreement on the others. According to the Republican members of the conference, it is impossible to say whether or not complete agreement can be reached and a report made to the House to-morrow. But it is hinted that a report may be made within the next two days that will cover all points of difference that have been adjusted, leaving the Senate and House free to express their wishes respecting matters still open.

Kendley-Miller.

Mr. Jno. F. Kendley and Miss Amelia C. Miller were married Sunday night by Rev. J. H. Boyd, at the Methodist parsonage, at 9:30 o'clock. The bride and groom are both of East Roanoke.

An Alliance Experiment.

From the Baltimore Sun.

The North Carolina Farmers' Alliance will establish a school of their own at Moorhead City. The foundation of the first of the buildings was laid last week, and it will speedily be completed. It will accommodate 300 pupils, and other buildings will be erected. The object is to furnish tuition and board at actual cost. The superintendent will buy food at wholesale, and each pupil will pay his exact proportion of the cost. It is calculated that this will not exceed $5 per month. It is proposed to divide the salaries of the teachers among the scholars in the same way. Agents are now at work among the alliance in various sections of the State.

THE END OF TARIFF TALK.

A Conference Agreement Likely to be Reached To-morrow.

Sugar, Binders' Twine, Rice and Steel the Points not yet Agreed Upon—The Standard for Free Sugar Likely to be Placed at 13 and not 16 as Proposed—Southern Republicans and the Tobacco Tax.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—[Special]—At a late hour to-night it was the confident expectation of the Republican conferees on the tariff bill that on Wednesday, or Thursday at the latest, would be witnessed the opening debate on the adoption of the conference report and the final passage of the bill by the House. The Republican conferees had a meeting to-night, lasting three hours, and while the three disputed questions of most importance, rice, sugar, binders' twine and steel, were not settled, the Senate and House wings flapped near enough together to warrant the conferees in saying that they had no doubt but that both wings would be found working in unison some time to-morrow. Just on what basis this result would be brought about they refused to state, saying that conclusions had not yet been arrived at.

A meeting of the full conference committee will be called for some time to-morrow to pass formally upon the work done in private by a majority of the members. This meeting it is not expected will occur at noon, but it will be called as soon as the Republicans, in their meeting to-morrow, accomplish the agreement they confidently assert will be reached at to-morrow's formal session. The ending, which there has been so much talk, has been definitely settled, February 1 being the date agreed upon.

There is reason to predict that a free sugar standard will be placed at thirteen and not at sixteen as proposed by the House, that a compromise generally favorable to the House will be the outcome of the disputes over various items in the metal schedule, and that binders twine also will be a subject of compromise. Southern Republican Congressmen held a meeting to-night and adopted resolutions declaring that it was very essential to the interests of their constituents that the tax on tobacco should be left as fixed by the House. Some of them were quite emphatic in expressing their determination to carry their point on this matter.

THE PRESIDENT'S INFORMATION.

McKinley and Aldrich Telegraph Him That Congress Will Adjourn by Oct. 1.

CRESSON, PA., Sept. 22.—[Special]—The President received a telegram from Senator Aldrich and Representative McKinley this afternoon stating their belief that Congress will dispose of the tariff bill during the present week, and adjourn the first of October, or soon after.

These telegrams were in response to a request from the President for information on the subject. His intention to return to Washington on the 24th inst. is strict accordance with the plan arranged soon after his arrival here on the 5th inst.

The Site for the World's Fair.

CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—[Special]—A committee from the local worlds fair directory waited on the South Park commissioners this morning, and laid before them the request of national commission that Washington Park be included in the site for the fair. After some discussion the South Park commission decided to accede to the request of the national commission. So the vexed question of a satisfactory site is at last settled. At this afternoon's session of the national committee, the amended site proposition was presented and unanimously accepted. The site thus provided for includes Washington and Jackson parks, Midway Plaisances connecting them, and lake front in all about 1,000 acres.

A "Snide" Show Cancelled.

The engagement of "Colored Aristocracy," booked to play at the Opera House to-night, has been cancelled. The show is one of the biggest humbugs on the road, and as soon as Manager Beckner discovered it he telegraphed them that they could not appear here. This is what the Knoxville Tribune says of the company: "There was a very large crowd of people at Staub's Theatre last night to witness the performance of the 'Colored Aristocracy' Company. It was almost the unanimous verdict that the show was very 'snide.' In other words, it was exceedingly 'tough.' It would have been bad even as a ten-cent show. When the curtain went down on the last act the house was filled with hisses, and the gallery gods manifested their indignation by vigorous cries of 'rats,' 'rats,' 'rats.' A wagon load of rotten eggs could have been retailed at a good price about that time in front of the theatre."

"Of course Manager Staub did not know that it was a 'snide' company. The advance agent showed good credentials, or the attraction would not have been booked."

New Savings Bank.

Judge Robertson granted a charter yesterday to the State Savings Bank, with a capital stock of $30,000 (with power to increase to $100,000), divided into shares of $100 each. The officers for the first year are: President, F. A. Barnes, Vice-president, C. O'Leary, Cashier, H. G. Cole, Attorney, C. A. McHugh, Directors, F. A. Barnes, C. O'Leary, James A. McConnell, C. A. Huffman, J. F. St. John, J. F. Barbee of Roanoke, and G. H. P. Cole, of Hendersonville, North Carolina.

The objects of the bank are to encourage the saving of small sums of money, to receive money on deposit, to grant certificates for money on deposit in sums not less than $1, and charge a certain interest, the amount of which is to be fixed by the board of directors.
